IN THOMPSON
DEATH PUZZLE

Negro Bellboy Dying, Under Charge of Murder, Now Vindicated by Detective.

PROBED CASE 22 MONTHS

NEW YORK, July 1.—After an investigation twenty-one months old, it is stated positively that Aaron Hill Thompson, who had been charged with the murder of the New York Times for forty years, who was said to have been murdered and killed on November 7, 1905, in his cell in the State Prison at Sing Sing, New York, was killed by a negro bellboy, who died accused of the crime.

Following the death of the negro in the month following the murder, the police abandoned their search for the murderer, and since then their records as a murderer, and ever since have contended in the few of all other cases.

William M. C. Jones, who has a reputation as a detective, and who has been called upon to take up the mystery surrounding the killing, has been told as much as the police have thrown it aside.

Certain Police Error.

Mr. Clemens was certain that their theory that the negro hellboy was the murderer was not supported by the evidence, and that the police only too willingly placed the crime at Hannibal's door.

The facts that have been ascertained about the murder of the hellboy by Mr. Clemens not only eliminate the negro hellboy, but shatter conclusively the argument which the police have used to sustain their theory of his guilt.

An autopsy by Coroner Scholer showed that Mr. Thompson had been struck about twenty blows on the head with a blunt instrument, and the skull was fractured in three places, the ears lacerated, the scalp wounded five times, the eyes blackened, the neck discolored, the face brained and the body confused in many places. The inquiry disclosed that Mr. Thompson was assaulted on Thursday, September 1. It was also established that between 9:00 and 11:00 in money, a memorandum book, a key to the safe, a wristwatch, a desk that was found open by Mary Moran and a gold watch and chain were missing from among the editor's possessions.

Bellboy Mite of a Man.

After the coroner's jury had returned a verdict of guilty against Hannibal, Police Commissioner McAdoo said:

"If Hannibal were alive to-day I would

Hannibal was easily marked among the negro servants. He was known as "the little fellow" because of his frail build. He was not more than five feet four inches tall.

The nature of Mr. Thompson's wounds were such as to preclude Hannibal having been the assassin. The shots not strong enough to strike blow that would make a five-inch fracture. He was shorter than Mr. Thompson and in no possible manner could he have raised himself to produce the wound that was inflicted. The assassin must have been fully six feet tall and very strong. None of the employees at the hotel on the night of the murder answered that description.

Maine Dynamiting Tragedy.

lance G. Everett, locked up in the County Jail here to await trial for the alleged murder of his friend and business associate, Edgar L. Radcliffe, owes his incarceration solely to the sharp eyes and executive ability of young Miss Grace Thayer, the undertaker at this village, became known to-day.

It looked like plain sailing for Everett after this, but Miss Thayer was critical. After examination of the body and notification of the coroner and the county clerk, an autopsy was quickly followed by Everett's arrest. He will be tried here next October.

BROOKLYN, July 1.—With a double-header on the cards today the Doves-Dodger scries should have a happy ending. The visitors have won the only two games played and they expect to take the re-

Judging by their work in this city, the Doves just now are capable of giving any team in the league a good argument. They are playing fast all-around ball. They are hitting the leather hard, fielding excellently and their pitchers are in good form.
